

Cameron Bryson | DOP

Cameron Bryson is an internationally working cinematographer whose career began in the stunt industry, filming pre-visualized action sequences for major productions in Toronto, Canada. This foundation in movement and visual precision informs his cinematic approach across, commercial, and long-form work.

His first feature, West of Her (2016), a road movie filmed across multiple U.S. states, earned several festival awards including Best Cinematography at the Scruffy City Film Festival. After relocating to London in 2018, Cameron shot the independent horror features The Jack in the Box and Awakening the Jack in the Box, before being invited to lens Season 2 of the acclaimed Amazon Prime series The Family Man for creators Raj & DK. The series became one of India's most-watched streaming productions, earning multiple awards and nominations for cinematography, including Filmfare, the Indian Television Academy Awards, and a win at the IWM Digital Awards.

Now based in London, Cameron continues to film both locally and abroad. His work is defined by a commitment to cinematic storytelling that is visually expressive, emotionally grounded. He brings a depth of experience gained through years of collaboration across diverse international industries and demanding production environments.
